Ezzat Alkamhawi (born December 23, 2021) is an Egyptian writer and novelist. His works focus on the value of freedom and the links between knowledge and human happiness. Some of his works have been translated into English, Chinese, and Italian.

Alkamhawi received the Naguib Mahfouz Prize in 2012 for his novel Beit El-Deeb, which deals with 150 years of the life of a rural Egyptian family in parallel with the history of Egypt and the region. His novel, Enough We Are Together, was shortlisted for the Sheikh Zayed Book Award in 2018. Alkamhawi won the Samir Kassir Award for Freedom of the Press in 2022.